

MORNING APPEAL.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 22

BLAND'S PROPOSITION.

Congressman Bland proposes to strike out all after the enacting clause of the Carlisle bill now before the House and substitute a bill which he has prepared for a currency system based on coin and coin notes. This bill provides for the free coinage of silver, and for the deposit of gold and silver bullion in the Treasury and the issuance of legal tender notes upon the bullion so deposited. This bullion is to be coined and the coin notes issued thereon are to be redeemed in gold or silver, without discrimination, as may be most advantageous to the Government. It also provides for issuing coin notes on standard silver dollars, and all outstanding gold and silver certificates are to be retired and coin notes substituted therefor. Provision is made for the redemption of outstanding greenbacks and Treasury notes in gold or silver coin without discrimination.

The bill also provides for an Emergency Fund, so that in case of a money stringency the Secretary of the Treasury may, on deposit of United States interest-bearing bonds, issued to depositors of the bonds coin notes, interest on the bonds to go to the Government while they are on deposit, and should the bonds mature while on deposit they are to be canceled.

The plan does not interfere with the present National bank system. It proposes, however, to have the Government issue notes as well as the banks, while the Carlisle plan would have National and State banks issue all the notes. There is not much probability of the Carlisle bill passing either House of Congress, though its passage has been recommended by the President, and neither is it likely that the Bland bill would receive the approval of the President if it should be passed by Congress. The Bland bill would place the currency on a coin basis, without discriminating against gold or silver. This, of course, does not suit the Gold Trust and the agents of the trust in Congress will oppose it to the end. Should the Chinese require a few hundred millions in silver to pay the war indemnity it would enhance the market value of the metal. An advance of twenty-five or thirty cents an ounce in the price of silver at the time would give an irresistible impulse to the Bland measure and force its passage through both Houses.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

In the action taken by the California Press Association last week, lacking to the defeat of legislation that limits and binds the publicity of matters that ought to be advertised, it should be understood that these newspaper men were not merely selfish. They know that safety in public concern is due to broad publicity. But cut press publicity on a legal and official basis and replace it for instance, and how easy it would be for county, municipal and state Administrations to corrupt and for the taxatees to devour the taxpayers. The country newspaper men depend up on economic administration and general prosperity for their own success; their highest interest always goes inseparable from community, county and State economies and cleanliness. They demand that publicity, the sentinel on the watch-towers of liberty, shall not be removed—and they are right.—Rec'd Union.

By a recent the Democrats gained two delegates to the Utah Constitutional Convention, which makes the Convention stand Republicans 54 and Democrats 53 delegates. More changes are expected, which may give the Democratic control of the Convention. Utah is a true specimen of east and west politics, and what is needed is for the third great party to step in and kill off the political vermin which now infest and disgrace that State. Two years from now it will be done.—Silver State.

Count Divonne, who married Miss Florence Audenard of Washington, proposes to have a burning question settled once for all, the question as to whether a rich Amer can in their-in-law shall be compelled to support a spendthrift son-in-law of little and alleged nobility. The mother-in-law offers to give him a pension of $3,000 if he will go back to France and stay there. He could possibly stand that, but when she suggested that he should go to work his arrest came and resulted, and he has appealed to the American courts for protection.

A few years back the small farmers tributary to Oakland, Southern California, began raising chickens, ducks and turkeys for the Portland and San Francisco markets, and now their annual shipments of them return about $300,000.
